

Finishing Strong

How to finish a costume

Half a costume and the clock is ticking? A calm plan to get to wearable without an all nighter.

1

Step 1

Count the real time you have

Write down when you need to be dressed, then block out sleep and plans. The hours left are your costume budget.

★ A real number beats a vague panic.

2

Step 2

Shrink it to its signals

What makes the character recognizable across a room? A color, a hat, a prop. Protect those and let the rest go.

★ Recognizable beats perfect.

3

Step 3

Shop your own home first

Raid the closet, the recycling bin and the junk drawer. Cardboard, safety pins, tape and an old sheet go far.

★ Need to buy? One list, one trip.

4

Step 4

Make tiny, visible tasks

One job per sticky note: attach the clasp, glue the ears. Do the smallest one first, in short timed bursts.

★ And stop to eat.

5

Step 5

Do a quick safety check

No hems that drag, reflective tape after dark, patch test makeup, and no contact lenses without a prescription.

★ Two minutes is enough.

6

Step 6

Call it done, wear it proudly

Set a stop time about an hour before you leave. When it arrives, the costume is finished. Take a photo.

★ Finished counts. Perfect is optional.

Wearable is the win

You do not need the costume you imagined in September. You need one you can wear on the night.

Save this for Halloween week

Full guide: link in bio