

Finish Line Weekly

ADHD productivity news, Nov 1

Five stories from this week, each with a short, kind note on why it matters.

Research

More kids have a diagnosis

CDC data: US children ever diagnosed with ADHD rose from 9.9% in 2019 to 13.8% in 2025. The report did not look at why.

★ You are part of a big, growing group.

Research

ADHD missed in many women

A small study of women in care for depression or anxiety found about one in five met ADHD criteria, and almost half had never been told.

★ A fair question to ask a clinician.

Research

Some weeks really are harder

In a pilot study, 30 women logged daily symptoms. They were strongest during their period and mildest in the week after.

★ Track your hard days for a month.

Big idea

Feelings, not just focus

A psychologist argues trouble managing strong emotions may drive many ADHD focus struggles. It is her clinical view, still debated.

★ Name the feeling, then start.

Try this

Use the hour you got back

Clocks fell back an hour today in most of the US. Spend part of it finishing one small, nagging task.

★ A smoke detector battery counts.

That's the week, gently

A hard stretch is information, not a verdict on you. Try one small thing today.

Save this for later

Full guide: link in bio